"I am the proud mother of three outstanding children. When my daughter was diagnosed with Autism, I was introduced to an amazing community of people who were faced with similar challenges. I quickly developed a passion for enriching the lives of children with special needs, and began volunteering to help in any way I could. Now, I work exclusively with this population and continue to volunteer to help families in any way I can. This is where my heart is, and it has become my passion."

Professional Profile

Cici Osonma possesses two Masters degrees in the field of education and a post-graduate certificate in Educational Leadership from the University of Texas at San Antonio. She has also received extensive training in various areas that support children with special needs such as dealing with challenging behavior, applied behavior analysis, and several instructional strategies for students with Special Needs. She has many years of experience as a public educator and has worked as a school principal for NISD. She also provides trainings to parents, educators, and healthcare professionals that work with children with developmental delays. In her spare time, she volunteers to support and advocate for families of children with special needs.
